If the downloaded file ends in.exe then it is probably a setup, and you need to install it. Q: How to detect a specific keydown event I would like to make a simple 2D tile based game and I want to perform a check on the key down event before moving the character. But sometimes I would like to enter into a room, and I press E and the character still moves so it doesn't know it's supposed to only move when a specific key is pressed and not any key. The thing is I want to be able to check for what the key is for example one game I want the key E to check if the player is in a fireplace Any idea how I can do this without using another library? A: int keystate[SOMETHING] = false; // initialized to false to begin with // in the loop that you want to track events if (keystate[SOMETHING]!=
